A WEEK WITH GRANDMA.

What can a ten year old girl do? She likes the feel of fabric and textures—cutting squares is fun. She's able to use the sewing machine—why not teach her how to pin and sew accurate seams? Why not spend the day assisting while she sews her quilt top? Tomorrow is block of the month club—I really don't want to miss it. I'll ask if she would like to go along. "Sure, Grandma, but can I take my quilt top for show and tell?" Her face is absolutely beaming as she shows her completed top. What a great week! When can she come and stay with grandma again?

Do you know what? This actually happened at one of our August club meetings. It's a thrill to know that there are people of all ages who get excited about working and building with fabric.
